

BASi Signs Reseller Agreement With LABEX of MA for Refurbished Culex® Automated Blood Sampling Systems

Better Data Driving Better Decisions

PRESS RELEASE UPDATED: JUL 31, 2017 08:33 EDT

WEST LAFAYETTE, IN, July 31, 2017 (NewsWire.com) -

Bioanalytical Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ:BASI) ("BASi" or the

"Company"), a recognized global leader in the development of instrumentation for automated blood sampling in animal models, today announced that it has entered into a reseller agreement with LABEX of MA ("LABEX") for refurbished BASi Culex® Automated Blood Sampling Systems.

BASi Culex Automated Blood Sampling Systems deliver programmable, continuous, automated blood microsampling that provides a full pharmacokinetic curve from a single, fully conscious, freely-moving animal. The system allows for the simultaneous collection of multiple data streams such as blood, bile, metabolites, dialysates and more. LABEX is a leading source of reconditioned and used animal caging and vivarium equipment.

"We couldn't be more pleased to be partnering with LABEX as a reseller of our refurbished Culex systems given their industry experience, a broad network of loyal customers, and exceptional client care," said Alan Loch, Director of Business Development for BASi. "Our Culex systems perfectly complement LABEX's already incomparable array of high-quality, reconditioned and used vivarium equipment."

Ed Russo, President of LABEX of MA said, "Everyone here at LABEX is excited about our recent partnership with BASi. We are hopeful it will open many doors for us while we are able to help our customers purchase top-notch blood sampling systems."

Our Culex systems perfectly complement LABEX's already incomparable array of high-quality, reconditioned and used vivarium equipment.

ALAN LOCH, DIRECTOR OF BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT FOR BASI
